ASKS MARSHALL SUPPORT

Congressmen Confused By Bitter Broadside Against Diplomats

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley hoped today for an opportunity to tell Congress the full story how he was "double-crossed" on far eastern policy by state department "career men"—his reason for resigning as ambassador to China.

Prospects were good that he would get such an opportunity. Many congressmen wanted him to elaborate on his charges that certain career diplomats were undermining his efforts to bring China's opposing factions together by siding either with Chinese Communists or the "imperial bloc nations" seeking to keep China divided.

Hurley, who bitterly criticized this government's failure to follow through on its foreign policy pledges, called on the public to give full support to his successor, Gen. George C. Marshall. But he recommended that Marshall be given a public directive so both he and the nation can know what our policy in China is supposed to be.

President Truman named Marshall, the retiring Army chief of staff, as envoy to China shortly after Hurley resigned yesterday. Marshall conferred with the President and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes this morning in preparation for an early departure for Chungking. The feeling seemed to be mutual between Hurley and Capitol Hill that a congressional investigation probably by the senate foreign relations committee was in order.

In the wake of one of the most sensational diplomatic outbursts in U. S. history, members of the house and senate were admittedly confused by Hurley's bitter broadside against certain career foreign service officials and wanted to hear more.

And Hurley was willing and ready to supply names, dates and details to back up his charges.

Hurley's associates told the United Press he was disappointed at the turn of events. He came back from China in October confident that he had made great progress in bringing dissident Chinese elements—the Nationalists and the Communists—together. Shortly after his return, trouble flared openly in China. Hurley now attributes this in large measure to misadministration of this

Hurley Quits; Marshall Named

WITH a hot blast against sabotage of American foreign policy, Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, 54, has resigned his post as U. S. Ambassador to China. President Truman announced that Gen. George C. Marshall, 62, who has just retired as chief of staff, would succeed Hurley, who warned that "there is a third world war in the making."

650,000 Steel Workers Vote On Strike; UAW, Federal Officials Meet

By United Press

More than 650,000 steelworkers participated in a national strike vote today, and striking auto workers continued a coast-to-coast walkout against General Motors in the CIO's battle for higher wages.

Polling places were set up near 766 plants in 27 states — at an estimated cost of $300,000 to the National Labor Relations Board—although the United Steel Workers (CIO) was assured that demands for a $2-a-day blanket pay boost would be endorsed.

The trade magazine Iron Age admitted that an industrywide steel strike appeared inevitable but predicted that walkout would not take place before the first of the year.

Government and United Automobile Workers (CIO) officials began conferring in Washington today as the General Motors tie-up, involving 175,000 strikers, entered its second week.

Original plans also called for a meeting between conciliation service and company representatives, but GM President C. E. Wilson said last night he had given labor department officials no reason to think he'd be in Washington "this week or at any other time."

As the NLRB tabulated results from the biggest strike vote in history and rushed plans for similar elections among almost 1,500,000 more workers by New Year's day, some 520,000 U. S. workers were away from their jobs as a result of strikes.

Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwellenbach yesterday organized a panel to study labor demands for a 30 per cent wage increase to keep pay at wartime levels.

The panel's activities were confined to the long-standing dispute in the oil industry, but administration leaders were hopeful that the findings would provide a formula for resolving wage disputes in steel, rubber, automobile, etc.

Only five children and a woman passenger escaped.

Snow—which in falling during a wild storm caused the bus to plunge from the mountain road—was the only reminder of the usually happy season. Attention of salvage workers rested on recovering the victims' bodies to assuage somewhat the grief of parents.

COMMUNISTS ARE BLAMED

Incident Occurs While U. S. Commanders Go To Meeting At Chungking

SHANGHAI, Nov. 28—American naval headquarters announced today that the American patrol vessel 134 was fired upon yesterday, presumably by Communists, while on convoy duty in the Yangtze river.

Rear Admiral Charles T. Joy, commander of the Yangtze patrol, said the craft was fired upon by small arms from the shore at a point eight miles above Kichau while in a small convoy returning from Hankow.

The craft returned the fire with its 20-millimeter cannon. There were no American casualties.

A similar incident involving another patrol craft occurred Oct. 23.

The top commanders of the American Army and Navy in China departed for Chungking today to confer with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek about the future of American forces in north China.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of the American Army in China, and Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the U. S. Navy in China, will remain in Shanghai.

Organizations Join Fight Against Use As Hospitals Of Surplus Buildings

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Veterans leaders rallied to the support of Gen. Omar N. Bradley today in a fight against enforced use by the veterans administration of surplus Army and Navy hospitals.

They said Bradley's revolutionary medical program had been delayed at least six months when the house appropriations committee turned down Monday his request for funds to build 19 new hospitals and additions to 20 others.

Though there was no official comment from VA it was known that Bradley, who has promised he will build hospitals where needed rather than where politics dictate, will not accept the rebuff as final.

The committee recommended that Bradley's proposal to spend $134,859,326 on new construction and $23,460,674 on additional work at hospitals already authorized be held in abeyance until congress

UNO GROUP TO HEAR DELEGATES FROM U. S. CITIES

LONDON, Nov. 28—United Nations committee members today began hearing Saturday the delegations from American cities which seek the permanent headquarters of the organization.

British and Belgian proposals for an indefinite delay in the selection of UNO headquarters were rejected. A subcommittee was named to take evidence and cross-examine delegations from the United States, Yugoslavia, Holland, Iran, Australia, Columbia, Cuba and Egypt were represented on the sub-committee.

Other committee members will proceed with consideration of recommendations for the qualifications that a city must have to obtain the permanent headquarters.

American Tells Court About Early Plans Of Nazis To Seize Austria

NUERNBERG, Nov. 28—George Messersmith, American diplomat formerly stationed in Berlin and Vienna, testified in an affidavit today that Nazi leaders had boasted for years that they would use "whatever means necessary" to seize Austria.

From the very beginnings of the Nazi regime, he said, high Berlin officials were amazingly frank in their statements of the lengths to which they were prepared to go in order to incorporate Austria into the Reich. They called it a political and economic necessity.

The Germans seized Austria on March 11, 1938, after forcing the Austrian chancellor, Kurt Schuschnigg, from office and installing the Austrian Nazi, Arthur Seyss-Inquart.

SEYSS-INQUART immediately requested German troops to come and "preserve order."

Messersmith, presently American ambassador to Mexico City, made his testimony by affidavit, the prosecution said, because he was too old to make the long trip to Nuremberg. The testimony was admitted over a defense protest.

As consul in Berlin from 1930-1934 and minister to Austria until 1937, Messersmith saw at first hand Nazi preparations to seize the country in which Hitler was born.

He said that Schuschnigg and other Austrian leaders told him that the German government applied constant pressure for inclusion of Austrian Nazis into the Austrian government. He added that the Nazis pursued their aims by terrorism, economic pressure and propaganda.

In Berlin, he said, "I found no concealment in my conversations with high Nazi officials of the fact that they were responsible for these activities in Austria."

Open Navy Court Martial Of Capt. McVay May Bring Indianapolis Story

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—An open Navy court martial next week for Capt. Charles B. McVay, III, skipper of the cruiser Indianapolis, is expected to reveal new details about the ill-fated ship which blew up in the Pacific two weeks before the war ended.

Every one of the 1,196 officers and men aboard was killed or wounded.

An authoritative Navy source revealed that the cruiser exploded suddenly from causes as yet unknown officially. But naval experts believe she may have rammed a Japanese submarine lying dead in the water a night.

Whether the enemy submarine was disabled or was deliberately silent to prevent the cruiser's sound gear from locating it was not known. But it was assumed that torpedoes aboard the submarine blew up, sinking the Indianapolis. Survivors floated in the water four days before being rescued.

Specific charges against the cruiser's skipper will not be revealed until the trial opens at the Washington Navy yard Monday at 10 a. m.

The Indianapolis, just repaired after severe damage from a Jap suicide plane, went on her last mission from San Francisco to Guam on July 16, carrying essential atomic bomb material. She successfully delivered her cargo.

FORMAL OPINION ON VOTE ASKED

Attorney General May Decide Who Will Be New Asheville Mayor

The tie vote in the Asheville mayor's race will be submitted by the county prosecutor to the attorney general for a formal opinion, it was announced at the election board meeting Tuesday night.

The hotly-contested race between write-in candidate Harry Litten and Mayor T. R. Accord became an official tie according to a recount conducted last week.

The secretary of state was then asked what to be done about it and he advised that the matter be submitted to the attorney general.

Mr. Litten claims that one disputed vote should be counted for him.

Election board members voted two for counting the vote and two against. The disputed ballot was then certified to the secretary of state by the board.

YAMASHITA ON STAND DENIES MURDER ORDERS

MANILA, Nov. 28—Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita testified in his defense today that he did not order the destruction of Manila and swore that he "absolutely" did not order the killing of civilian or prisoners of war.

As the 60 year old "Tiger of Malaya" protested innocence before the military commission trying him, the Philippines supreme court denied his habeas corpus petition challenging Gen. MacArthur's authority to order war crimes trials.

The court held it lacked jurisdiction because the commission was appointed by Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, western Pacific commander, under "constitutionally valid" orders from MacArthur.

GREW ON STAND AGAIN

Former Envoy To Japan Says He Felt War Due When Tojo Took Over

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Gen. George C. Marshall will be called before the Pearl Harbor investigating committee before he leaves for China as President Truman's diplomatic representative there, the committee said today.

Chairman Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., said he did not know just when the former Army chief of staff would be called. But, he said, the committee will want to hear Marshall's testimony before he leaves the country to succeed former ambassador Patrick J. Hurley in Chungking.

Marshall will be questioned, it was believed, concerning the days immediately before Pearl Harbor when the war department here was in communication with the Army's Hawaiian department on the danger of war with Japan.

An Army inquiry board which investigated the Pearl Harbor defeat criticized Marshall in its report last August on the grounds that, as chief of staff, he should have kept the Hawaiian commander more fully advised as to the threat of war in the Pacific.

The committee, meanwhile, recalled Joseph C. Grew, last U. S. ambassador to Japan, for further questioning. It had intended to quiz former secretary of state Cordell Hull again today, but inclement weather kept the 74-year-old Hull from venturing out.

Grew testified that he told his Washington superiors on Nov. 3, 1941, that he felt "the risk and danger of war were very great and Konoye's cabinet in 1941—which was very dangerous, and increasing."

He said he felt the fall of Prince Konoye's cabinet in 1941—which he said was brought about by the late President Roosevelt's refusal to meet with the Japanese premier—lessened the chances of peace.

The elevation of war leader Hideki Tojo to the premiership succeeded the moderate Konoye, Grew said, did not bring an immediate stop to the pre-Pearl Harbor peace talks.

But, Grew continued, "frankly I felt the possibility of coming to an agreement after the Tojo government came into power had very definitely decreased."

Sen. Homer Ferguson, R., Mich., questioned Grew as to whether he was notified that Great Britain "took any parallel action similar to our note of Aug. 17" warning Japan against further aggressions.

"I have no such recollection," Grew replied.

"Do you know," Ferguson continued, "that if Japan crossed a certain line in Thailand (Siam), the United States, British, and Dutch military authorities in the Far East had agreed 'military counter action' should be taken against Japan?"

"So far as I can recollect," Grew said, "I was not informed—I had no knowledge along that line at all."

When Hull returns to the stand later, Rep. John W. Murphy, D., Pa., plans to ask him if the state department or White House had information on Dec. 6, 1941, or the following morning that Japan was about to attack Pearl Harbor.

"I anticipate that his answer will be in the negative," Murphy said. "But I'm going to ask the question to be sure that the record is clear on that point."

Hull told the committee yesterday he first heard of the attack as he sat in his office about midday Dec. 7 waiting for Japanese envoys who had asked to see him at 1 p. m.

"It must have been around midday. I received a telephone message from the White House stating there was a report that Pearl Harbor had been attacked," he recalled.

Hull said he asked whether the report had been confirmed and he was told it had not been. That was the last he heard before the Japanese envoys arrived.

"I discussed before they came whether I would accredit that report as the unquestioned truth of the situation and refuse to admit them, or whether in view of the extremely delicate relations I would leave open the one chance in 10 or more that the report was not correct," he continued.

"I proceeded to receive and confer with them although I felt that the chances were altogether virtually certain that the report was true."

Hull said the Japanese envoys presented a proposal which pictured the situation just the opposite of the facts. He said they tried to make it look like the Japanese were striving for peace. He said they defined the U. S. attitude just the opposite of what it really was.

"I felt and knew of the extreme probability that the Pearl Harbor report was true," Hull said. "I felt like taking liberties in talking to them about their government in what would not be diplomatic language in ordinary times."

Hull, who can and does draw upon his Tennessee mountain background for colorful language when the occasion is suitable, dismissed the Japanese envoys. By that time the Pacific war was on.

Committee records show that part of the statement the Japanese envoys handed Hull already had been intercepted by this government. The Jap reply was in 14 parts.

According to records, the first 13 parts were transmitted from Tokyo to the Japanese embassy in Washington on Dec. 6 with instructions to keep it secret until further orders. It was intercepted by the U. S. Navy Dec. 6.

The record shows that the 14th part, notifying this government that the Japanese were terminating conversations, and a separate message instructing the ambassadors to deliver the note at 1 p. m. Dec. 7, was intercepted and translated on that date. Neither mentioned Pearl Harbor as a possible scene of a Japanese attack.

The records do not show, however, what time the 14th part or the delivery instructions were translated. That part of the story is expected to be developed through later witnesses who handled the actual translation and delivery to the White House and state department.

unal said that Rudolf Hess has resisted all efforts to cure his amnesia and refused to undergo voluntary treatment until his trial is finished.

The reports, submitted by experts from four nations, said that Hess was suffering from hysterical amnesia but was not insane in the strict sense of the word.

The report recommended treatment and said he could be cured.

The controversy as to whether or not Hess can stand trial will be settled late Friday afternoon, when the tribunal hears both prosecution and defense discuss the medical reports.

A British medical report on Hess said "at the moment he is not insane in the strict sense. His loss of memory will not entirely interfere with his comprehension of proceedings but will interfere with his ability to make his defense."

The joint French-American report said he was suffering from hysteria "characterized in part by loss of memory."

Russian medical experts said his "hysterical behavior" does not exonerate him from his responsibility under the indictment. It suggested that his amnesia might end if he is kept in the trial.

A French-Russian report stated that Hess had refused to submit to a narcosis analysis treatment.

American Prosecutor Sidney Alderman started the morning court session by seeking to prove that the German occupation of Austria was made easier by the Nazi movement inside Austria.

Messersmith said Franz von Papen told him "he was telling me this because the German government was bound to this objective of getting control of southeastern Europe, and there was nothing which could stop it, and that our policy as well as that of France and England was not realistic."

Messersmith expressed himself to von Papen as shocked by these revelations, but the Nazi merely smiled, and said the conversation was between them.

Allied war crimes prosecutors struck a telling blow for their conspiracy charge against Nazi leaders with presentation of the affidavit.

The Austrian Anschluss was presented as the first move by the Nazis to enslave the entire Balkan area. Messersmith said Nazi leaders had maintained openly for years that they would seize Austria by "whatever means necessary."

Von Papen, one of the Nazi defendants, grimaced wryly, his face reddened, and he wagged his head as Prosecutor Sidney Alderman read the affidavit by Messersmith.

huge peak-ringed lake, maximum depth of which is unplumbed in many places.

The 13th naval district was sending deepsea divers and special equipment here after Washington State Patrol Chief Herb Algeo asked for Navy aid.

The divers yesterday found two of the 16 victims. The first body located was that of Henry Davis, 16, a freshman at nearby Chelan consolidated high school. Then they came upon that of Ronnie Ayers, 13, who had tried to swim ashore but floundered and drowned in the frigid water.

Both bodies were lodged on rocks at the 144-foot level.

Two bureau of reclamation divers, who recovered the bodies, estimated that the bus might be caught on a ledge as far down as 300 feet after analyzing surface oil slicks.

First Creek, Lakeside and Twenty-Five-Mile Creek, all tiny rural communities near the small city of Chelan, were in mourning. The Chelan city hall was prepared to serve as a morgue should the bodies be found.

The parents of the dead, giving up their sad vigil at the shore, were in seclusion.

Memorial services were planned at Chelan consolidated school, where many of the children were bound when the accident occurred. Classes were being held as usual, but the shocked students at Chelan and at the little Lakeside school, which numbered nine of its pupils among the missing, sat unsmiling with no taste for school-room pranks.

They were remembering how their parents whispered about an object which bobbed ashore from the enveloping waters of pretty Lake Chelan—a little, water-soaked lunch bag.

Three hundred and fifty dollars out of a $500 appropriation made this week by the county commissioners for crow bounties has already been collected by four crow hunters, the auditor's office announced Wednesday. Bounty on crows is 25 cents per head.

Biggest payment went to Irvin Patrick, state game protector, who brought in 470 heads and collected $117.50. The crows were shot in Perry township. His brother George also drew a large payment, collecting $84.75 for 337 crows shot in Deer Creek township.

For shooting 363 crows in Deer Creek township, Ross Seymour received a bounty of $90.75 and for killing 242 crows in Perry township, Marvin Nungesser received $60.50. The $500 appropriation is the last allowed this year.

country's policy by foreign service career men.

The President asked Hurley to return to China after a vacation and Hurley agreed. He came back from his rest, however, to find according to his own description—that the foreign service careerists had upset his policies and plans.

Thoroughly angry, Hurley went to the state department Monday and submitted his resignation and accompanying statement to Byrnes, who urged him to reconsider because of the serious situation in China. After another talk with Byrnes later the same day, Hurley promised to return to China temporarily.

In the meantime, however, he was attacked in the house by Rep. Hugh Delacy, D., Wash., who charged that Hurley had caused dissension between the central and Communist Chinese governments. Hurley felt this attack represented the views of those state department elements which had been "undermining" him and he decided to quit immediately.

The basic reason behind Hurley's anger over Delacy's speech—described by former the ambassador's friends as the "straw that broke the camel's back"—was that Hurley was intensely proud of the way he brought Nationalist and Communist leaders to the same conference table in Chungking.

Delacy reiterated his criticism with this comment on Hurley's resignation:

"He more than anyone is responsible for our troops, supplies and transports being used to support the reactionary Chungking regime and to suppress the rights of people to self-government in China."

Mr. Truman did not learn of the resignation until he was shown a copy of the story as carried by the United Press. Shortly afterward, he received the resignation from Byrnes and it was accepted almost at once.

The President immediately called Marshall at the general's country home in Leesburg, Va., and asked him to take the China assignment. Marshall, who headed the Army during the war and in the difficult period before it, agreed, even though he had looked forward to a rest. He will retain his rank as general of the army.

Marshall will be 65 next month and his assignment in China is expected to be temporary. The White House said it was a natural assumption that Mr. Truman at some future date would nominate a regular diplomat but that in the meantime, Marshall would serve as the President's personal representative with ambassadorial rank. His appointment was certain of overwhelming congressional approval.

THOMAS HERBERT SEEKING UNITED FRONT IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28—Thomas J. Herbert of Cleveland, former three-term attorney general and present candidate for the republican nomination for governor, today made public a letter he had sent to all GOP officials.

Herbert asked the recipients to express their views by letter or telephone, both as to his candidacy and as to policies on which the GOP party could "present a solid and united front."

"It is my hope that from your replies a comprehensive program can be gradually assembled which will represent the collective thought of our party leadership," Herbert said.

He indicated he would also extend his inquiry to include all Ohio republicans in Congress, in the legislature and in state, county and municipal offices.

Herbert is the only announced candidate of prominence for the republican nomination thus far in the race. His backers are trying to enlist enough early, influential support to discourage other entries.

Former lieutenant governor Paul M. Herbert, of Columbus, is regarded as the chief threat to the plan. Although Paul Herbert is not yet an announced candidate, he has intimated that he intends to enter the race.

trical manufacturing and other industries.

The labor department's decision to enter the General Motors strike, which has cut in half the nation's automobile production, came after the corporation declined to renew negotiations on union demands for a 30 per cent raise.

Elsewhere in the automotive industry, 40,000 Ford Motor company workers were laid off for the rest of the week or longer. Company spokesmen said they had been forced to shut down the giant River Rouge and several smaller plants because of a shortage of parts resulting from strikes against supplier companies.

At Windsor, Ont., across the river from the Detroit industrial area, hope was renewed for a settlement of the long strike of 10,000 Ford of Canada employees.

Canadian minister of Labor Humphrey Mitchell told the house of commons yesterday that a formula had been developed which he felt would be acceptable to both parties.

At a meeting in Detroit last night delegates representing 31,000 tool and die workers gave their local authority to stop work on products destined for General Motors plants. Tool and die workers, also members of the UAW, probably would continue working on products for other firms, however.

In other labor developments, 5,000 New York Western Union workers walked off their jobs last night to attend a mass meeting and voted unanimously in favor of a strike.

The workers are protesting the company's appeal of a regional war labor board decision granting a 10-cent an hour increase. Western union employees in the entire area must vote in an NLRB election Thursday before action can be taken.

Elsewhere in New York, Railway Express workers went ahead with plans to strike at midnight Saturday over demands for a 20 per cent increase. Railway express workers in other cities have indicated they will accept a national mediation board award of an additional 10 cents an hour.

A weekend "demonstration" walkout against Montgomery Ward & Co. in nine cities went into its third day as workers continued to protest the company's refusal to arbitrate contract terms. The strike was scheduled to last through Saturday.

On the west coast, negotiations were being reopened in the 66-day old northwest lumber strike, and strike policy chairman John Christenson said a 15-cent compromise agreement reached in Tacoma, Wash., Sunday night meant settlement of the strike by the end of the week.

Meanwhile, Joseph Curran, president of the national maritime union (CIO), announced that he had "recommended" a nationwide 24-hour strike of all seamen in U. S. ports next Monday to protest government delay and "bungling" in the return of overseas veterans. Curran said four other waterfront unions would join the NMU in striking.

considers an appropriation act for fiscal 1947.

It said further study should be given to the use of surplus service hospitals and added that delay may mean that better building materials are available.

Bradley has turned thumbs down on most of 60 Army and Navy hospitals recently offered to VA as surplus, holding that most are badly located and that many are fire-traps. He said political pressure would avoid nothing.

Millard W. Rice, national service director of the Disabled American Veterans, said the house should reinstate the stricken items, involving approximately 30,000 hospital beds, and that if it failed to do so the senate should act.

Omar Ketchum, legislative director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was "surprised and disappointed" at the committee action. Both Rice and Ketchum said that even if Bradley were to use all surplus service hospitals it is imperative to start work at once on permanent hospitals which ordinarily are not ready for use until two years after approval by congress.

Bradley ran into trouble shortly after he announced that future hospitals, in a reversal of policy, would be built near medical centers rather than in small communities far from specialized treatment.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., told Bradley publicly that if he did not take over an Army hospital at Okmulgee, Okla., he might be asked why when he approached the senate for more money.

SCIENTIST SAYS ATOM BOMB MUST BE OUTLAWED

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—The only hope of avoiding "the most horrible of all wars" is creation of a world organization to outlaw the atomic bomb, Dr. Laurence A. Hawkins, research consultant of General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., said today.

"There has been much public debate as to how much of a secret we possess and how long it will remain a secret," Hawkins told the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

"Among scientists, at least, there is general agreement that all the fundamental principles on which the atomic bomb is based are known to all the world and that it is only the engineering 'know-how' of process and equipment and of details of bomb design, which we now possess. The time required by another powerful industrial nation to develop such 'know-how', without help from us, has been variously estimated at from three to ten years."

"I can see no hope of averting the coming of the most horrible of all wars except by establishment of a strong international organization to outlaw atomic bombs and enforce their outlawry."

Seventh fleet, were expected to receive from the generalissimo a detailed account of military and political developments in the dispute with the Chinese Communists.

It will be Barbey's second session with Chiang Kai-Shek within the past week. He was in Chungking over the weekend with Edwin C. Pauley, American reparations commissioner for Japan.

Wedemeyer and Barbey have been conferring in Shanghai for several days. They also met with Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, U. S. Marine commander, who will return shortly to north China.

A Navy announcement stated that Barbey will move his flagship, the U. S. S. Estes, from Tsingtao to Chungking, where he will assume personal direction of fleet operations in north China.

Rockey said that Marines in north China have been under occasional gunfire while on railroad guard duty. He said it had been unnecessary to strafe a Communist village, as threatened, because the Communists ceased firing on Marines after a warning.

(In Tokyo, Pauley said he was still awaiting Russian permission to enter northern Korea and Manchuria to assess the Japanese holdings. He said he was without confirmation of reports that the Russians had removed Japanese factories and materials from those areas.)

SOLONS WANT TO GET TESTIMONY OF AMBASSADOR

Former Chief Of Staff To Tell His Story Before Leaving For China

Following morning that Japan was about to attack Pearl Harbor.

"I anticipate that his answer will be in the negative," Murphy said. "But I'm going to ask the question to be sure that the record is clear on that point."

Hull told the committee yesterday he first heard of the attack as he sat in his office about midday Dec. 7 waiting for Japanese envoys who had asked to see him at 1 p. m.

"It must have been around midday, I received a telephone message from the White House stating there was a report that Pearl Harbor had been attacked," he recalled.

Hull said he asked whether the report had been confirmed and he was told it had not been. That was the last he heard before the Japanese envoys arrived.

"I discussed before they came whether I would accredit that report as the unquestioned truth of the situation and refuse to admit them, or whether in view of the extremely delicate relations I would leave open the one chance in 10 or more that the report was not correct," he continued.

"I proceeded to receive and confer with them although I felt that the chances were altogether virtually certain that the report was true."

Hull said the Japanese envoys presented a proposal which pictured the situation just the opposite of the facts. He said they tried to make it look like the Japanese were striving for peace. He said they defined the U. S. attitude just the opposite of what it really was.

"I felt and knew of the extreme probability that the Pearl Harbor report was true," Hull said. "I felt like taking liberties in talking to them about their government in what would not be diplomatic language in ordinary times."

Hull, who can and does draw upon his Tennessee mountain background for colorful language when the occasion is suitable, dismissed the Japanese envoys. By that time the Pacific war was on.

Committee records show that part of the statement the Japanese envoys handed Hull already had been intercepted by this government. The Jap reply was in 14 parts.

According to records, the first 13 parts were transmitted from Tokyo to the Japanese embassy in Washington on Dec. 6 with instructions to keep it secret until further orders. It was intercepted by the U. S. Navy Dec. 6.

The record shows that the 14th part, notifying this government that the Japanese were terminating conversations, and a separate message instructing the ambassadors to deliver the note at 1 p. m. Dec. 7, was intercepted and translated on that date. Neither message was intercepted by this government. The Jap reply was in 14 parts.

The records do not show, however, what time the 14th part of the delivery instructions were translated. That part of the story is expected to be developed through later witnesses who handled the actual translation and delivery to the White House and state department.

JAYCEES PLAN MUSIC FESTIVAL IN CLEVELAND

Plans for a county high school music festival the week before Christmas were announced at Tuesday night's Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting at Hanley's. Chairman William Stebleton of the chamber's Christmas activities committee reported that plans had been made for county high schools to participate in a music festival to be held in Cleveland during the week preceding Christmas. Definite arrangements will be made after a meeting with the county superintendent. Other plans of this committee include selling Christmas trees and a "buck" auction.

John Moore, chairman of the Victory Loan drive for the South East district reported that captains had been contacted and that districts had been assigned. Each captain is to notify members of his team to complete soliciting before December 8.

At a board of directors meeting held after the regular meeting, Richard Plum and Richard Morris, Jr. were elected to the board to replace Robert Lawrence and Hal Dean who have moved away. Elliot White was named first vice president and John Moore, state director, both officers having been held by Hal Dean.

Edward Amey was elected to membership.

American Tells Court About Early Plans Of Nazis To Seize Austria

unal said that Rudolf Hess has resisted all efforts to cure his amnesia and refused to undergo voluntary treatment until his trial is finished.

The reports, submitted by experts from four nations, said that Hess was suffering from hysterical amnesia but was not insane in the strict sense of the word. The report recommended treatment and said he could be cured.

The controversy as to whether or not Hess can stand trial will be settled late Friday afternoon, when the tribunal hears both prosecution and defense discuss the medical reports.

A British medical report on Hess said "at the moment he is not insane in the strict sense. His loss of memory will not entirely interfere with his comprehension of proceedings but will interfere with his ability to make his defense."

The joint French-American report said he was suffering from hysteria "characterized in part by loss of memory."

Russian medical experts said his "hysterical behavior" does not exonerate him from his responsibility under the indictment. It suggested that his amnesia might end if he is kept in the trial.

A French-Russian report stated that Hess had refused to submit to a narcoanalysis treatment.

American Prosecutor Sidney Alderman started the morning court session by seeking to prove that the German occupation of Austria was made easier by the Nazi movement inside Austria.

Messersmith said Franz von Papen told him "he was telling me this because the German government was bound to this objective of getting control of southeastern Europe, and there was nothing which could stop it, and that our policy as well as that of France and England was not realistic."

Messersmith expressed himself to von Papen as shocked by these revelations, but the Nazi merely smiled, and said the conversation was between them.

Allied war crimes prosecutors struck a telling blow for their conspiracy charge against Nazi leaders with presentation of the affidavit.

The Austrian Anschluss was presented as the first move by the Nazis to engulf the entire Balkan area. Messersmith said Nazi leaders had maintained openly for years that they would seize Austria by "whatever means necessary."

Von Papen, one of the Nazi defendants, grimaced wryly, his face reddened, and he wagged his head as Prosecutor Sidney Alderman read the affidavit by Messersmith.

TOWN IS FACING SAD CHRISTMAS

huge peak-ringed lake, maximum depth of which is unplumbed in many places.

The 13th naval district was sending deep-sea divers and special equipment here after Washington State Patrol Chief Herb Algeo asked for Navy aid.

The divers yesterday found two of the 16 victims. The first body located was that of Henry Davis, 16, a freshman at nearby Chelan consolidated high school. Then they came upon that of Ronnie Ayers, 13, who had tried to swim ashore but floundered and drowned in the frigid water.

Both bodies were lodged on rocks at the 144-foot level.

Two bureau of reclamation divers, who recovered the bodies, estimated that the bus might be caught on a ledge as far down as 300 feet after analyzing surface oil slicks.

First Creek, Lakeside and Twenty-Five-Mile Creek, all tiny rural communities near the small city of Chelan, were in mourning. The Chelan city hall was prepared to serve as a morgue should the bodies be found.

The parents of the dead, giving up their sad vigil at the shore, were in seclusion.

Memorial services were planned at Chelan consolidated school, where many of the children were bound when the accident occurred.

Classes were being held as usual, but the shocked students at Chelan and at the little Lakeside school, which numbered nine of its pupils among the missing, sat unsmiling with no taste for school-room pranks.

They were remembering how their parents whispered about an object which bobbed ashore from the enveloping waters of pretty Lake Chelan—a little, watersoaked lunch bag.

CROW BOUNTIES PAID BY COUNTY TO FOUR HUNTERS

Three hundred and fifty dollars out of a $500 appropriation made this week by the county commissioners for crow bounties has already been collected by four crow hunters, the auditor's office announced Wednesday. Bounty on crows is 25 cents per head.

Biggest payment went to Irvin Patrick, state game protector, who brought in 470 heads and collected $117.50. The crows were shot in Perry township. His brother George also drew a large payment, collecting $84.75 for 337 crows shot in Deer Creek township.

For shooting 363 crows in Deer Creek township, Ross Seymour received a bounty of $90.75 and for killing 242 crows in Perry township, Marvin Nungesser received $60.50. The $500 appropriation is the last allowed this year.

BYRNES BACKS URUGUAY STAND ON ARGENTINA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Two American Republics—the United States and Uruguay—were on record today as favoring collective intervention anywhere in the Americas "to defend human rights and dignity" and preserve peace.

In a statement apparently aimed at the military government of Argentina but not naming it, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes strongly endorsed Uruguay's stand that the principles of non-intervention and upholding human freedom do not always mix.

Byrnes declared that "if they are to preserve the peace, the American republics cannot permit oppressive regimes to exist in their midst."

He said "violation of elementary rights of man" by a "government of force" justified "collective multilateral action."

PET TEEGARDIN STEER WITHDRAWN FROM SHOW

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—A note of pathos, as well as triumph, accompanied the naming of a grand champion in the 13th annual Pittsburgh livestock show yesterday.

A pet 890-pound steer, sent by young Paul W. Teggardin, of Pickaway county, Ohio, had to be withdrawn from competition and started home when its owner, sick in bed, aggravated his condition by "crying his heart out" for his pet.

A 995-pound black Angus named "Jake" owned by Dale Crozier, of near Zanesville, O., was named grand champion from the 205 steers of more than 100 4-H entries. "Jake" also placed first in the breed championship class along with "Blackie," another Angus owned by Denslow Eversole, of Basil, O.

THOMAS HERBERT SEEKING UNITED FRONT IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28.—Thomas J. Herbert of Cleveland, former three-term attorney general and present candidate for the republican nomination for governor, today made public a letter he had sent to all GOP officials.

Herbert asked the recipients to express their views by letter or telephone, both as to his candidacy and as to policies on which the GOP party could "present a solid and united front."

"It is my hope that from your replies a comprehensive program can be gradually assembled which will represent the collective thought of our party leadership," Herbert said.

He indicated he would also extend his inquiry to include all Ohio republicans in Congress, in the legislature and in state, county and municipal offices.

Herbert is the only announced candidate of prominence for the republican nomination thus far in the race. His backers are trying to enlist enough early, influential support to discourage other entries.

Former lieutenant governor Paul M. Herbert, of Columbus, is regarded as the chief threat to the plan. Although Paul Herbert is not yet an announced candidate, he has intimated that he intends to enter the race.

SPARKMAN TO REPLACE RAMSPECK AS HOUSE WHIP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Rep. Robert Ramspeck, D. Ga., who is resigning from congress, will be succeeded as House Democratic whip by Rep. John J. Sparkman, D. Ala.

Ramspeck is leaving congress to become executive vice-president of the air transport association of America. He is expected to resign before the end of the year.

country's policy by foreign service career men.

The President asked Hurley to return to China after a vacation and Hurley agreed. He came back from his rest, however, to find according to his own description—that the foreign service careerists had upset his policies and plans.

Thoroughly angry, Hurley went to the state department Monday and submitted his resignation and accompanying statement to Byrnes, who urged him to reconsider because of the serious situation in China. After another talk with Byrnes later the same day, Hurley promised to return to China temporarily.

In the meantime, however, he was attacked in the house by Rep. Hugh Delacy, D. Wash., who charged that Hurley had caused dissension between the central and Communist Chinese governments.

Hurley felt this attack represented the views of those state department elements which had been "undermining" him and he decided to quit immediately.

The basic reason behind Hurley's anger over Delacy's speech—described by former the ambassador's friends as the "straw that broke the camel's back"—was that Hurley was intensely proud of the way he brought Nationalist and Communist leaders to the same conference table in Chungking.

Delacy reiterated his criticism with this comment on Hurley's resignation:

"He more than anyone is responsible for our troops, supplies and transports being used to support the reactionary Chungking regime and to suppress the rights of people to self-government in China."

Mr. Truman did not learn of the resignation until he was shown a copy of the story as carried by the United Press. Shortly afterward, he received the resignation from Byrnes and it was accepted almost at once.

The President immediately called Marshall at the general's country home in Leesburg, Va., and asked him to take the China assignment. Marshall, who headed the Army during the war and in the difficult period before it, agreed, even though he had looked forward to a rest. He will retain his rank as general of the army.

Marshall will be 65 next month and his assignment in China is expected to be temporary. The White House said it was a natural assumption that Mr. Truman at some future date would nominate a regular diplomat but that in the meantime, Marshall would serve as the President's personal representative with ambassadorial rank. His appointment was certain of overwhelming congressional approval.

tribal manufacturing and other industries.

The labor department's decision to enter the General Motors strike, which has cut in half the nation's automobile production, came after the corporation declined to renew negotiations on union demands for a 30 per cent raise.

Elsewhere in the automotive industry, 40,000 Ford Motor company workers were laid off for the rest of the week or longer. Company spokesmen said they had been forced to shut down the giant River Rouge and several smaller plants because of a shortage of parts resulting from strikes against supplier companies.

At Windsor, Ont., across the river from the Detroit industrial area, hope was renewed for a settlement of the long strike of 10,000 Ford of Canada employees.

Canadian minister of Labor Humphrey Mitchell told the house of commons yesterday that a formula had been developed which he felt would be acceptable to both parties.

At a meeting in Detroit last night delegates representing 31,000 tool and die workers gave their local authority to stop work on products destined for General Motors plants. Tool and die workers, also members of the UAW, probably would continue working on products for other firms, however.

In other labor developments, 5,000 New York Western Union workers walked off their jobs last night to attend a mass meeting and voted unanimously in favor of a strike.

The workers are protesting the company's appeal of a regional war labor board decision granting a 10-cent an hour increase. Western union employees in the entire area must vote in an NLRB election Thursday before action can be taken.

Elsewhere in New York, Railway Express workers went ahead with plans to strike at midnight Saturday over demands for a 20 per cent increase. Railway express workers in other cities have indicated they will accept a national mediation board award of an additional 10 cents an hour.

A weeklong "demonstration" walkout against Montgomery Ward & Co. in nine cities went into its third day as workers continued to protest the company's refusal to arbitrate contract terms. The strike was scheduled to last through Saturday.

On the west coast, negotiations were being reopened in the 66-day-old northwest lumber strike, and strike policy chairman John Christensen said a 15-cent compromise agreement reached in Tacoma, Wash., Sunday night meant settlement of the strike by the end of the week.

Meanwhile, Joseph Curran, president of the national maritime union (CIO), announced that he had "recommended" a nationwide 24-hour strike of all seamen in U. S. ports next Monday to protest government delay and "bungling" in the return of overseas veterans. Curran said four other waterfront unions would join the NMTU in striking.

He indicated he would also extend his inquiry to include all Ohio republicans in Congress, in the legislature and in state, county and municipal offices.

Herbert is the only announced candidate of prominence for the republican nomination thus far in the race. His backers are trying to enlist enough early, influential support to discourage other entries.

Former lieutenant governor Paul M. Herbert, of Columbus, is regarded as the chief threat to the plan. Although Paul Herbert is not yet an announced candidate, he has intimated that he intends to enter the race.

country's policy by foreign service career men.

The President asked Hurley to return to China after a vacation and Hurley agreed. He came back from his rest, however, to find according to his own description—that the foreign service careerists had upset his policies and plans.

Thoroughly angry, Hurley went to the state department Monday and submitted his resignation and accompanying statement to Byrnes, who urged him to reconsider because of the serious situation in China. After another talk with Byrnes later the same day, Hurley promised to return to China temporarily.

In the meantime, however, he was attacked in the house by Rep. Hugh Delacy, D. Wash., who charged that Hurley had caused dissension between the central and Communist Chinese governments.

Hurley felt this attack represented the views of those state department elements which had been "undermining" him and he decided to quit immediately.

The basic reason behind Hurley's anger over Delacy's speech—described by former the ambassador's friends as the "straw that broke the camel's back"—was that Hurley was intensely proud of the way he brought Nationalist and Communist leaders to the same conference table in Chungking.

Delacy reiterated his criticism with this comment on Hurley's resignation:

"He more than anyone is responsible for our troops, supplies and transports being used to support the reactionary Chungking regime and to suppress the rights of people to self-government in China."

Mr. Truman did not learn of the resignation until he was shown a copy of the story as carried by the United Press. Shortly afterward, he received the resignation from Byrnes and it was accepted almost at once.

The President immediately called Marshall at the general's country home in Leesburg, Va., and asked him to take the China assignment. Marshall, who headed the Army during the war and in the difficult period before it, agreed, even though he had looked forward to a rest. He will retain his rank as general of the army.

Marshall will be 65 next month and his assignment in China is expected to be temporary. The White House said it was a natural assumption that Mr. Truman at some future date would nominate a regular diplomat but that in the meantime, Marshall would serve as the President's personal representative with ambassadorial rank. His appointment was certain of overwhelming congressional approval.

THOMAS HERBERT SEEKING UNITED FRONT IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28.—Thomas J. Herbert of Cleveland, former three-term attorney general and present candidate for the republican nomination for governor, today made public a letter he had sent to all GOP officials.

Herbert asked the recipients to express their views by letter or telephone, both as to his candidacy and as to policies on which the GOP party could "present a solid and united front."

"It is my hope that from your replies a comprehensive program can be gradually assembled which will represent the collective thought of our party leadership," Herbert said.

He indicated he would also extend his inquiry to include all Ohio republicans in Congress, in the legislature and in state, county and municipal offices.

650,000 Steel Workers Vote On Strike; UAW, Federal Officials Meet

tribal manufacturing and other industries.

The labor department's decision to enter the General Motors strike, which has cut in half the nation's automobile production, came after the corporation declined to renew negotiations on union demands for a 30 per cent raise.

Elsewhere in the automotive industry, 40,000 Ford Motor company workers were laid off for the rest of the week or longer. Company spokesmen said they had been forced to shut down the giant River Rouge and several smaller plants because of a shortage of parts resulting from strikes against supplier companies.

At Windsor, Ont., across the river from the Detroit industrial area, hope was renewed for a settlement of the long strike of 10,000 Ford of Canada employees.

Canadian minister of Labor Humphrey Mitchell told the house of commons yesterday that a formula had been developed which he felt would be acceptable to both parties.

At a meeting in Detroit last night delegates representing 31,000 tool and die workers gave their local authority to stop work on products destined for General Motors plants. Tool and die workers, also members of the UAW, probably would continue working on products for other firms, however.

In other labor developments, 5,000 New York Western Union workers walked off their jobs last night to attend a mass meeting and voted unanimously in favor of a strike.

The workers are protesting the company's appeal of a regional war labor board decision granting a 10-cent an hour increase. Western union employees in the entire area must vote in an NLRB election Thursday before action can be taken.

Elsewhere in New York, Railway Express workers went ahead with plans to strike at midnight Saturday over demands for a 20 per cent increase. Railway express workers in other cities have indicated they will accept a national mediation board award of an additional 10 cents an hour.

A weeklong "demonstration" walkout against Montgomery Ward & Co. in nine cities went into its third day as workers continued to protest the company's refusal to arbitrate contract terms. The strike was scheduled to last through Saturday.

On the west coast, negotiations were being reopened in the 66-day-old northwest lumber strike, and strike policy chairman John Christensen said a 15-cent compromise agreement reached in Tacoma, Wash., Sunday night meant settlement of the strike by the end of the week.

Meanwhile, Joseph Curran, president of the national maritime union (CIO), announced that he had "recommended" a nationwide 24-hour strike of all seamen in U. S. ports next Monday to protest government delay and "bungling" in the return of overseas veterans. Curran said four other waterfront unions would join the NMTU in striking.

VETERANS BACK BRADLEY PLANS

considers an appropriation act for fiscal 1947.

It said further study should be given to the use of surplus service hospitals and added that delay may mean that better building materials are available.

Bradley has turned thumbs down on most of 60 Army and Navy hospitals recently offered to VA as surplus, holding that most are badly located and that many are fire-traps. He said political pressure would avail nothing.

Millard W. Rice, national service director of the Disabled American Veterans, said the house should reinstate the stricken items, involving approximately 30,000 hospital beds, and that if it failed to do so the senate should act.

Omar Ketchum, legislative director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was "surprised and disappointed" at the committee action. Both Rice and Ketchum said that even if Bradley were to use all surplus service hospitals it is imperative to start work at once on permanent hospitals which ordinarily are not ready for use until two years after approval by congress.

Bradley ran into trouble shortly after he announced that future hospitals, in a reversal of policy, would be built near medical centers rather than in small communities far from specialized treatment.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, D. Okla., told Bradley publicly that if he did not take over an Army hospital at Okmulgee, Okla., he might be asked why when he approached the senate for more money.

SCIENTIST SAYS ATOM BOMB MUST BE OUTLAWED

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The only hope of avoiding "the most horrible of all wars" is creation of a world organization to outlaw the atomic bomb, Dr. Laurence A. Hawkins, research consultant of General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., said today.

"There has been much public debate as to how much of a secret we possess and how long it will remain a secret," Hawkins told the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

"Among scientists, at least, there is general agreement that all the fundamental principles on which the atomic bomb is based are known to all the world and that it is only the engineering 'know-how' of process and equipment and of details of bomb design, which we now possess. The time required by another powerful industrial nation to develop such 'know-how,' without help from us, has been variously estimated at from three to ten years."

"I can see no hope of averting the coming of the most horrible of all wars except by establishment of a strong international organization to outlaw atomic bombs and enforce their outlawry."

REHEARING REFUSED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28.—The state supreme court today refused to rehear the case of Richard Knight, whose conviction and life imprisonment sentence for murder were upheld by the court recently.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

David T. Pontius of New York city, grandson of Mrs. George Pontius of East Main street is an ensign in the Navy, stationed at Ominata Naval Base, Honshu Island, Japan, and is serving on an LST. He was moved to Honshu after seeing service at Okinawa.

Ensign Pontius writes that the Japanese outside of the large cities live under very primitive conditions. They are extremely poor and ignorant, but very industrious, he writes.

Americans have no trouble with them. They are accustomed to obeying orders, Ensign Pontius writes. They are polite to Americans, children and older people and all salute when Americans pass.

Before the war they knew nothing of the strength of America. They are so poor that life in the Army and Navy gave them better clothes and food than they ever got at home, he reports. Their equipment and ships were mostly inferior to those of the United States.

Mrs. Ralph Diltz, the former Miss Geraldine Hettinger, of Circleville, has returned from Mt. Honer, Idaho, where Mr. Diltz received his discharge from the Army.

Major Arthur P. Powell of Williamsport is among 3 men from this area who have been discharged from the armed services according to lists received Wednesday. Major Powell was discharged at Indiantown Gap, Pa. A Circleville Marine, Pfc. Fred Keaton, 218 Corwin street, has received his discharge from the Marine Corps, and a Circleville soldier, T-4 Eugene T. Smith of 921 South Court street, has received his discharge from the Army at Fort Knox, Ky.

The Page Rank will be conferred on a large class at Palmetto Lodge Wednesday beginning at 7:30 p. m. according to Chancellor Commander Charles W. Fortner. The work will be in charge of Master of Work C. D. Kraft.

Fred E. Brobst, local instrumental music instructor, will direct the anniversary musical concert at St. Mark's church, Columbus, Sunday evening at 7:30. The church was organized 60 years ago and has met in the same building for the past 30 years.

William Toole of the U. S. Navy is home on 40-day leave and will report at Great Lakes upon completion of his furlough. During the past 20 months, young Toole was stationed on the Admiralty Islands.

Floyd Gaines has received his discharge and is visiting with home folk.

Joseph C. Peters, commander of Scioto Commandery, announces that the Red Cross and Malta will be conferred at a conclave Thursday evening.

Richard Pettibone is visiting with his sister, Lurain in Connecticut.

Ashville's basketball team journeys to Groveport Friday in Groveport's opening game of the season. Little is known of Groveport's strength, but it is expected that Groveport will have a tall, rugged team capable of giving the local boys a severe test.

Work on remodeling the former Ebert building now occupied by the Hill Pharmacy was begun this week.

Be sure old floors are perfectly clean and dry before repainting them. Scrub the surface if necessary to remove dust, dirt or grease that have accumulated. Be sure to rinse thoroughly with clear water to remove all soap. Grease spots can be removed by scraping with a putty knife and washing with turpentine. Where the wood has shrunk and caused cracks to appear between the boards, fill cracks with a good quality crevice filler before painting. Old finish that is cracked or chipped must be removed in order to get a satisfactory new paint job. When painting a floor, brush the first coat thoroughly into worn and bare spots where wood is exposed.

Be sure old floors are perfectly clean and dry before repainting them. Scrub the surface if necessary to remove dust, dirt or grease that have accumulated. Be sure to rinse thoroughly with clear water to remove all soap. Grease spots can be removed by scraping with a putty knife and washing with turpentine. Where the wood has shrunk and caused cracks to appear between the boards, fill cracks with a good quality crevice filler before painting. Old finish that is cracked or chipped must be removed in order to get a satisfactory new paint job. When painting a floor, brush the first coat thoroughly into worn and bare spots where wood is exposed.

What Price Victory?

Your Share of the Cost is an Extra Bond in America's Great Victory Loan

THIS VETERAN will never get back what he gave up for his country. You get back more than you lend your country—$4 for every $5—when you buy VICTORY "E" Bonds.

So, it isn't asking much when Uncle Sam asks your help in caring for our more than 300,000 wounded. Today their medical care and rehabilitation are among America's gravest problems. And the cost is high.

Look at these examples if you want to know why the most important Bonds you've ever bought are the Bonds you buy in America's Great Victory Loan: Cost of a hospital ship, $4,500,000; a hospital plane, $110,000; supplies for a thousand bed hospital, $177,500.

Don't forget, either, that War Bonds are the world's safest investment—handy as ready cash for pleasures or emergencies. Above all remember 300,000 wounded need your help today.

BY TEX TAYLOR

With football season almost over in the North, interest is dropping in Circleville. The Army-Navy game this Saturday, however, has almost universal appeal. For the more rabid sports fan, several games are scheduled to be played in the South this week.

The two most bitter rivalries that will be renewed in the South are the Tulane-L. S. U. and Texas-Texas A & M melees. If Texas defeats the Aggies, it can emerge undisputed king of the Southwest conference and go to the Cotton Bowl. If Texas doesn't win, Texas A & M, Rice and the winner of

TROUBLESOME SOVEREIGNTY

ANTHONY Eden, who probably has as keen a sense of events as any man in England, seems to think that if our great modern nations perish, it may be from excess of nationalism. Atomic power might be the immediate means of military destruction, but it would be extreme nationalism that pushed us all to that peril. Our nation and others, persisting in our own system and sovereignty regardless of what other nations may think and want to do about it, might make united action and peace impossible.

How then may such a perilous state be avoided? Eden says frankly that he is "unable to see any final solution that will make the world safe from atomic power, other than that we all abate our present ideas of sovereignty."

This will be a hard saying, especially to Americans, who from revolutionary days and even earlier have been so stoutly set on our own complete sovereignty, as against all other nations. And if anything is to come of it, as Mr. Eden suggests, "we have got somehow to take the sting out of nationalism." He suggests that "the United Nations ought to review their charter in the light of discoveries made about atomic energy, which were not before us when the charter was drawn up."

We shall hear more about these high matters from now on.

CHINA'S GREAT WALL

THE Chiang Kai-shek armies in China have broken through the Great Wall, in their effort to conquer Manchuria from the Communists. This is less of a feat than it sounds. The Great Wall could never withstand a modern military attack. As a rule it is only 15 to 20 feet high, and it has crumbled away to nothingness in spots. Its chief purpose has long been the mere frustration of nomad cattle raids and other looting expeditions. The invaders might get through the Wall at its less defended points, but they could never drive their spoils home.

The rupture of the Great Wall cannot for a moment compare in difficulty with breaking through the Maginot or the Siegfried line.

Lindbergh says, "The recent world war could have been avoided." Of course it could, by letting the Germans and Japanese take everything they wanted.

When they get those 2,000 scientists rounded up and letting their hair down, we common people may really learn something about bombs.

It's all right to have ceilings on cars but be careful about getting cars on the ceiling.

About "Next World War"

By HELEN ESSARY

WASHINGTON—If I were a cartoonist, I'd be haunted by a possible sketch of the three great powers. The sketch would center around the piano the National Press club just gave President Truman.

In my drawing, Mr. Truman would be at the piano. Playing away with great gusto. The rapturous concentration of the musician shining in his face.

In the foreground, I'd put a bear. A big, clumsy bear dancing on his hind legs to the tune of Mr. Truman. The bear would represent Russia. He'd have a little of the look of Premier Josef Stalin—ferocity and the desire to please combined.

As for England, I'd represent it with Prime Minister Clement Attlee. I think I'd make him the boss of the act. In a mild way of course.

He would be shown taking up a collection as Mr. Truman pounded out a heavy crescendo finale and the bear bowed, with his teeth showing, in a mixed smile and growl.

I haven't quite worked out the fine details of my dream-sketch. But I'm sure I'd try to picture the bear willing to please. Indeed, I'd struggle to show him making a major attempt at purring. If somebody would just feed him a little honey and tell him what a handsome, gentle fellow he was instead of forever sacking him on to use his fangs and his claws.

I hope an artist, clever with a drawing board, will clear up my slightly involved idea and put it down in line and caption.

For it must be evident to anybody who is thinking with any objectivity at all, that we in this country continue day after day,

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—The inquiring congressmen have produced the complete Jap story of Pearl Harbor—but not ours.

What the Japs did and how they planned it can be rather fully understood from the files and statements uncovered by General MacArthur in Tokyo, but the American causes for our greatest disaster of all war history are not so plain.

The Japs decided upon the attack two months ahead, (October 5), when Mr. Roosevelt decided to impose the embargo upon supplies from us. Premier Yamamoto told the government the loss of economic sustenance from us would defeat Japan in her war in China, so she might as well go to war with us on the chance of winning all or nothing.

The date was picked then, orders issued November 5, fleet assembled November 25 (the date our Navy obviously feared something big decided to risk no more shipping in the northern Pacific and ordered all to the southern route).

The fleet refueled at sea 200 miles north of Pearl Harbor on December 6, and attacked the next day from that neglected expanse of ocean; lost only 27 of the 381 planes in the attack; the remainder getting back to the carriers striking westward, and all escaped northwestward to the home Kuriles.

The Japanese peace mission to the White House was a complete fake to cover this operation. The government had been reorganized November 2 to bring in a war crowd better schooled in Nazi technique (although Hitler was not advised.) Nor were the Jap peace emissaries informed of what was afoot.

The plan for the attack had been in the Jap war book for years, and every detail had been worked out by observation of our naval habits of bringing in ships and giving the men shore leave over weekends, opening the sub nets for garbage disposal at dawn, as well as our limited plane observation radius of 200 miles (just outside of which the Japs refueled.)

It was cunning, long-planned treachery perfectly executed under the most favorable possible auspices.

On our side of it, Mr. Roosevelt and his admirals knew an attack was to be made and the approximate time of it. But they expected it in Malaya against the British and Dutch, and against us in the Philippines. They did not expect it to fall upon Pearl Harbor, and were totally surprised when it did.

This is the only justifiable conclusion from the accumulated public evidence that they knew war was coming through intercepted messages, yet did nothing about Pearl Harbor. They did little more about the Philippines, anticipating no doubt, a long range war on that front in which we would attack Jap shipping northward and seek out the Jap fleet.

Beyond all the new and old facts about Washington's failure to warn and the Navy's failures to detect and defend, is the basic question of who was responsible for setting up our fleet like ducks on an enclosed pond for the Japs to destroy.

This is the inexcusable, colossal, overall blunder. A few hours warning from here would have dispersed the fleet to sea where the bulk of it would have been saved (the Jap planes had no gas for search-

Mouth Sores Sign of Illness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SORES in the mouth are sometimes very painful, and, because of the many things which may produce them, they are not always easy to eliminate. According to Doctors Martin Heinemann and Bert G. Anderson of Yale University School of Medicine, these sores in the mouth may indicate that there is some disturbance of the action of the sex glands and may occur during pregnancy or at the change of life.

They may be due to allergy or over-sensitivity to some food or may be only the result of poor care of the mouth.

Lack of Vitamins

Often the sores produced by these various conditions cannot be told from those due to lack of certain vitamins, particularly vitamin B-2, or riboflavin or niacin which is a part of the vitamin B-complex. Hence, when these sores develop, the first thing that must be done is to attempt, if possible, to determine the cause.

If the sores in the mouth are due to a lack of certain glandular secretions, as indicated by irregularities in the periods, treatment with the gland extracts are used to bring about a cure. It is suggested that either estrogenic substance or progesterone may be required. The estrogenic substance is advisable for those patients in whom the sores in the mouth appear five to twelve days before the regular periods.

Progesterone Used

The progesterone is used in those women who have an excessive menstrual flow with pain and swelling of the breasts before the regular periods or in whom the sores get worse about three days before the periods. Both of these gland extracts have to do with the action of the ovaries or sex glands.

In one of the patients treated by Doctors Heinemann and Anderson, the elimination of strawberries from the diet cleared up ulcers of the tongue as well as blister-like sores on the lips resembling cold sores. In another patient, the elimination of eggs from the diet cured the mouth disorder.

Food Sensitivities

Other persons were found to be sensitive to chicken, tomatoes and oranges. In these patients, not only were the foods causing the trouble eliminated from the diet, but they were also given ammonium chloride, which seemed to be quite beneficial.

Sometimes it is found that mouth sores occur in elderly persons with anemia or lack of coloring in the blood, together with a lack of acid in the stomach.

A careful study will usually reveal the cause for sores in the mouth so that the most effective treatment may be carried out.

SUPERINTENDENT BATTLE

"Neville Strange has other worries, I understand?"

"Kay told you, I suppose," said Mary Aldin. "Yes, it really has been rather difficult. Still, it's nothing to do with this dreadful business."

"Probably not, but all the same I'd like to hear your version of the affair, Miss Aldin."

Mary said slowly: "Well, as I say, it has created a difficult situation. Whoever's idea it was to begin with—"

He interrupted her deftly: "I understood it was Mr. Nevill's idea."

"He said it was."

"But you yourself didn't think so?"

"I—no—it isn't like Neville somehow. I've had a feeling all along that somebody else put the idea into his head."

"Mrs. Audrey Strange, perhaps?"

"It seems incredible that Audrey should do such a thing."

"Then who else could it have been?"

Mary raised her shoulders helplessly. "I don't know. It's just—queer."

"Queer," said Battle thoughtfully. "That's what I feel about this case. It's queer."

"Everything's been queer. There's been a feeling—I can't describe it. Something in the air. A menace."

"Everybody strung up and on edge?"

"Yes, just that. . . . We've all suffered from it. Even Mr. Latimer—" she stopped.

"I was just coming to Mr. Latimer. What can you tell me, Miss Aldin, about Mr. Latimer? Who is Mr. Latimer?"

"Well, really, I don't know much about him. He's a friend of Kay's."

"He's Mrs. Strange's friend. Known each other a long time?"

"Yes, she knew him before her marriage."

"Mr. Strange like him?"

"Quite well, I believe."

"No—trouble there?"

Battle put it delicately. Mary replied at once and emphatically: "Certainly not!"

"Did Lady Tressilian like Mr. Latimer?"

"Not very much."

Battle took warning from the aloof tone of her voice and changed the subject.

"This maid, now, Jane Barrett, she has been with Lady Tressilian a long time? You consider her trustworthy?"

"Oh, absolutely. She was devoted to Lady Tressilian."

Battle leaned back in his chair. "In fact, you wouldn't consider for a moment the possibility that Barrett hid Lady Tressilian over the head and then doped herself to avoid being suspected?"

"Of course not. Why on earth should she?"

"She gets a legacy, you know."

"So do I," said Mary Aldin. She looked at him steadily.

"Yes," said Battle. "So do you. Do you know how much?"

"Mr. Trellawny has just arrived. He told me."

"You didn't know about it beforehand?"

"No. I certainly assumed, from what Lady Tressilian occasionally let fall, that she had left me something. I have very little of my own, you know. Not enough to live on without getting work of some kind. I thought that Lady Tressilian would leave me at least a hundred a year—but she has some cousins and I did not at all know how she proposed to leave that money which was hers to dispose of. I knew, of course, that Sir Matthew's estate went to Neville and Audrey."

"So she didn't know what Lady Tressilian was leaving her?" Leach said when Mary Aldin had been dismissed. "At least that's what she says."

"That's what she says," agreed Battle. "And now for Bluebeard's first wife."

Audrey was wearing a pale gray flannel coat and skirt. In it she looked so pale and ghostlike that Battle was reminded of Kay's words: "A gray ghost creeping about the house."

She answered his questions simply and without any signs of emotion.

Yes, she had gone to bed at 10 o'clock, the same time as Miss Aldin. She had heard nothing during the night.

"You'll excuse me butting into your private affairs," said Battle, "but will you explain just how it comes about that you are here in the house?"

"I always come to stay at this time. This year, my—my late husband wanted to come at the same time."

"And what do you make of her?" asked Leach. "I've never seen anyone so—so devoid of emotion."

"She didn't show any," said Battle. "But it's there. Some very strong emotion. And I don't know what it is. . . ."

"Kay told you, I suppose," said Mary Aldin. "Yes, it really has been rather difficult. Still, it's nothing to do with this dreadful business."

"Probably not, but all the same I'd like to hear your version of the affair, Miss Aldin."

Mary said slowly: "Well, as I say, it has created a difficult situation. Whoever's idea it was to begin with—"

He interrupted her deftly: "I understood it was Mr. Neville Strange's idea."

"He said it was."

"But you yourself didn't think so?"

"I—no—it isn't like Neville somehow. I've had a feeling all along that somebody else put the idea into his head."

"Mrs. Audrey Strange, perhaps?"

"It seems incredible that Audrey should do such a thing."

"Then who else could it have been?"

Mary raised her shoulders helplessly. "I don't know. It's just—queer."

"Queer," said Battle thoughtfully. "That's what I feel about this case. It's queer."

"Everything's been queer. There's been a feeling—I can't describe it. Something in the air. A menace."

"Everybody's strung up and on edge?"

"Yes, just that. . . . We've all suffered from it. Even Mr. Latimer," she stopped.

"I was just coming to Mr. Latimer. What can you tell me, Miss Aldin, about Mr. Latimer? Who is Mr. Latimer?"

"Well, really, I don't know much about him. He's a friend of Kay's."

"He's Mrs. Strange's friend. Known each other a long time?"

"Yes, she knew him before her marriage."

"Mr. Strange like him?"

"Quite well, I believe."

"No—trouble there?"

Battle put it delicately. Mary replied at once and emphatically: "Certainly not!"

"Did Lady Tressilian like Mr. Latimer?"

"Not very much."

Battle took warning from the aloof tone of her voice and changed the subject.

"This had, now, Jane Barrett, she has been with Lady Tressilian a long time? You consider her trustworthy?"

"Oh, absolutely. She was devoted to Lady Tressilian."

Battle leaned back in his chair. "In fact, you wouldn't consider for a moment the possibility that Barrett hit Lady Tressilian over the head and then doped herself to avoid being suspected?"

"Of course not. Why on earth should she?"

"She gets a legacy, you know."

"So do I," said Mary Aldin. She looked at him steadily.

"Yes," said Battle. "So do you. Do you know how much?"

"Mr. Trelawny has just arrived. He told me."

"You didn't know about it beforehand?"

"No. I certainly assumed, from what Lady Tressilian occasionally let fall, that she had left me something. I have very little of my own, you know. Not enough to live on without getting work of some kind."

I thought that Lady Tressilian would leave me at least a hundred a year—but she has some cousins and I did not at all know how she proposed to leave that money which was hers to dispose of. I knew, of course, that Sir Matthew's estate went to Neville and Audrey."

"So she didn't know what Lady Tressilian was leaving her," Leach said when Mary Aldin had been dismissed. "At least that's what she says."

"That's what she says," agreed Battle. "And now for Bluebeard's first wife."

Audrey was wearing a pale gray flannel coat and skirt. In it she looked so pale and ghostlike that Battle was reminded of Kay's words: "A gray ghost creeping about the house."

She answered his questions simply and without any signs of emotion.

Yes, she had gone to bed at 10 o'clock, the same time as Miss Aldin. She had heard nothing during the night.

"You'll excuse me butting into your private affairs," said Battle, "but will you explain just how it comes about that you are here in the house?"

"I always come to stay at this time. This year, my—my late husband wanted to come at the same time and asked me if I would mind."

"It was his suggestion?"

"Oh, yes."

"Not yours?"

"Oh, no."

"But you agreed?"

"Yes, I agreed. . . . I didn't feel—that I could very well refuse."

"Why not, Mrs. Strange?"

But she was vague. "One doesn't like to be disobliging."

"You were the injured party?"

"I beg your pardon?"

"It was you who divorced your husband?"

"Yes."

"Do you—excuse me—feel any rancor against him?"

"No, not at all."

"You have a very forgiving nature, Mrs. Strange."

She did not answer. He tried silence—but Audrey was not Kay, to be thus goaded into speech. She could remain silent without any hint of uneasiness. Battle acknowledged himself beaten.

"You are sure it was not your idea—this meeting?"

"Quite sure."

"You are on friendly terms with the present Mrs. Strange?"

"I don't think she likes me very much."

"Do you like her?"

"Yes. I think she is very beautiful."

"Well—thank you—I think that is all."

She got up and walked towards the door. Then she hesitated and came back.

"I would just like to say—she spoke nervously and quickly. "You think Neville did this—that he killed her because of the money. I'm quite sure that isn't so. Neville has never cared much about money. I do know that. I was married to him for eight years, you know. I just can't see him killing anyone like that for money—it isn't Neville. I know my saying so isn't of any value as evidence—but I do wish you would believe it."

She turned and hurried out of the room.

"And what do you make of her?" asked Leach. "I've never seen anyone so—so devoid of emotion."

"She didn't show any," said Battle. "But it's there. Some very strong emotion. And I don't know what it is."

Shark People, Last Stone-Age Remnant
In North America, Doomed to Extinction

OUT TO SEA—Off for a day's fishing in the shark-infested Gulf of California goes this family of four.

BEAUTY—Aberigonal glamor girl.

By MILDRED NIXON
Central Press Correspondent

NOGALES, Ariz.—The Shark people, last remnants of the Stone Age in North America, have been ordered to close down their wife market on the island of Tiburon, 200 miles southwest of here.

Leaders of the Sharks, a tribal nation which has resisted civilization doggedly for four centuries, finally gave in when Mexican ethnologists, headed by Dr. Avila Jimenez, visited them.

The Mexican government, in turn, offered the Sharks, who are also known as the Tiburonos, every assistance, in the way of food, domestic animals and agricultural implements, toward perpetuating their stock.

"It was the same old story," Jimenez says. "They told us they wanted nothing. They would go on in their own ways."

"This means race suicide because they are rapidly dying out, partly because they are undernourished and partly because they refuse to marry outside of their own people and in-breeding is ruining them. We told them that. They merely shrugged their shoulders."

The wife market, Dr. Jimenez says, has been as carefully regulated as though the O.P.A. controlled it. There were ceiling prices set—150 pesos or about $30 for a single girl, $40 for a widow with one daughter, and $50 for a widow with two daughters.

The more daughters the woman brings her fiancé, the ethnologists discovered, the more valuable she is since the husband may eventually market them at a profit.

"The boy friend pays the money to her parents," Dr. Jimenez reports. "For that reason girls have been highly valued among the Tiburonos and they have developed a matriarchal type of society."

FREEDOM FASHION

IN step with the new world of freedom from war tasks and restrictions, comes this new slack suit with freedom from wrinkling and repeated pressing, that inevitable consequence of wrinkles. The wide-trousered slacks and deep-armor blouse are of specially treated rayon gabardine with Teflon tested crease-resistance. A day of active work or play or wrinkle-inducing lounging will leave this outfit still tailored and fresh. Even those unavoidable elbow and "sitting" creases will hang out overnight just as they do from fine woolsens.

NEWS
Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

ing out maneuverable ships.

Admiral Richardson says Roosevelt, 15 months earlier, told him the Japs would make a "mistake" and enter the war; but also declined to accept Richardson's policy of retiring the fleet to the safety of our Pacific coast and replaced him with a man who would do presidential bidding.

It was Mr. Roosevelt then, who is responsible for the policy of keeping the fleet based on Pearl Harbor as a general policy. His concept of Jap attack strategy was therefore wholly wrong.

As to the specific event of why the fleet was bottled there that day, it is unbelievably true that Mr. Roosevelt and his admirals who were required to follow his bidding, permitted those ships to remain closeted in their narrow base when they knew attack was coming—without a warning to disperse.

Some evidence suggests Mr. Roosevelt was playing a come-on game with the Japs, wanted to draw them into the "mistake" of war and thus dispose of them. This may be true, but nevertheless the man or men responsible for the disaster are the ones who left the fleet set up there that day. They could only be the ruling Navy clique of which Mr. Roosevelt was the intimate, ship-loving top man.

The answer which these facts demand is complete cleansing out of the top Navy—and Mr. Truman has already started it with the replacement of Mr. Roosevelt's Admiral King, (who came in after Pearl Harbor) and simultaneous approval by the President of the legislation to put the Navy with the Army and Air Corps into a combined armed service force.

STRIKE VOTE ON

Shark People, Last Stone-Age Remnant In North America, Doomed to Extinction

OUT TO SEA—Off for a day's fishing in the shark-infested Gulf of California goes this family of four.

BEAUTY—Aboriginal glamor girl.

By MILDRED NIXON
Central Press Correspondent

NOGALES, Ariz.—The Shark people, last remnants of the Stone Age in North America, have been ordered to close down their life market on the island of Tiburon, 200 miles southwest of here.

Leaders of the Sharks, a tribal nation which has resisted civilization doggedly for four centuries, finally gave in when Mexican ethnologists, headed by Dr. Avila Jimenez, visited them.

The Mexican government, in turn, offered the Sharks, who are also known as the Tiburones, every assistance in the way of food, domestic animals and agricultural implements, toward perpetuating their stock.

"It was the same old story," Jimenez says. "They told us they wanted nothing. They would go on in their own ways."

"This means race suicide because they are rapidly dying out, partly because they are undernourished and partly because they refuse to marry outside of their own people and in-breeding is ruining them. We told them that. They merely shrugged their shoulders."

The wife market, Dr. Jimenez says, has been as carefully regulated as though the O.P.A. controlled it. There were ceiling prices set—150 pesos or about $30 for a single girl, $40 for a widow with one daughter, and $50 for a widow with two daughters.

The more daughters the woman brings her fiancé, the ethnologists discovered, the more valuable she is since the husband may eventually market them at a profit.

"The boy friend pays the money for her parents," Dr. Jimenez reports. "For that reason girls have been highly valued among the Tiburones and they have developed a matriarchal type of society."

FREEDOM FASHION

IN step with the new world of freedom from war tasks and restrictions, comes this new slack suit with freedom from wrinkling and repeated pressing, that inevitable consequence of wrinkles. The wide-trousered slacks and deep-armhole blouse are of specially treated rayon gabardine with "Tebized" treated crease-resistance. A day of active work or play or wrinkle-inducing lounging will leave this outfit still tailored and fresh. Even those unavoidable elbow and "sitting" creases will hang out overnight just as they do from fine woolsens.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

ing out maneuverable ships.

Admiral Richardson says Roosevelt, 15 months earlier, told him the Japs would make a "mistake" and enter the war; but also declined to accept Richardson's policy of retiring the fleet to the safety of our Pacific coast and replaced him with a man who would do presidential bidding.

It was Mr. Roosevelt then, who is responsible for the policy of keeping the fleet based on Pearl Harbor as a general policy. His concept of Jap attack strategy was therefore wholly wrong.

As to the specific event of why the fleet was bottled there that day, it is unbelievably true that Mr. Roosevelt and his admirals were required to follow his bidding, permitted those ships to remain cloistered in their narrow base when they knew attack was coming—without a warning to disperse.

Some evidence suggests Mr.

VERA VAGUE DIVIDES TIME

Vera Vague will divide her time between host Frank Morgan and pianist Carmen Cavallaro on the Music Hall Thursday.

WORLD GOVERNMENT?

"Does the Atomic Bomb Make World Government Essential Now?" Four experts will debate that question, on "America's Town Meeting," in its broadcast Thursday. Speaking for the affirmative will be Raymond Swing, network news analyst and commentator, and Lt. Cord Meyer, former aide to Capt. Harold E. Stassen. Expressing opposing viewpoints will be Lt. Col. Regan "Tex" McCrary, former editor of the New York Daily Mirror and former public relations officer of the Eighth Air Force, and Major George Fielding Elliot.

ARMY-NAVY GAME

Ted Malone salutes the annual Army-Navy football classic with a program dedicated to sports on his Friday broadcast. Of all the American sports, such as baseball, football, basketball, tennis, fishing and hunting, Malone will reveal which one proves to be the costliest. The answer will surprise you.

CLASSICAL APPROVAL

All exponents of the classics do not frown upon popular music. Dr. Walter Damrosch is one example. For six years Damrosch trained Henry King for the career of a concert pianist. But King, who will be heard on "Spotlight Bands" Friday, changed his mind and organized a dance band. Today Dr. Damrosch is one of King's greatest admirers.

FM MAKING STRIDES

The Radio Manufacturers Association has issued, in "question and answer" form, the principal facts about FM, an important static-eliminating improvement in radio, brought up to date in line with postwar developments recently made public. Some of these are as follows:

Q. What is FM?

A. A new method of broadcasting that is normally operated in the higher portion of the radio spectrum and which makes possible faithful and natural reproduction of all musical tones from the deepest bass to the highest overtone.

Q. What is the chief difference between AM and FM?

A. An AM (standard) receiver responds to variations in amplitude, whereas an FM receiver responds to variations in frequency. Much electrical noise is not present in the higher frequencies used in FM.

Q. Are two different types of broadcasting methods necessary?

A. Yes. Most AM stations, including all those now on the ground waves which follow the curvature of the earth and which have a range of around 100 miles in the daytime and up to several hundred miles (for clear channel stations) at night. Most FM stations use a direct ray broadcasting--the radio wave travels on a straight line from station to horizon. The maximum range, both day and night, is around 100 miles.

Q. Are different types of radio receivers necessary to receive both FM and AM programs?

A. Yes, although many of the new model radios will be, in reality, FM and AM sets in one. These receivers will contain the essential components of both FM and AM and by means of a switch will be capable of changing to receive either kind of program.

Q. What is the position of FM in the radio spectrum?

A. The new FM frequencies, just authorized by the Federal Communications Commission, are from 88 to 108 megacycles. The width of the entire band is 20,000,000 cycles.

Q. What is the position of AM in the radio spectrum?

A. From 550 to 1600 kilocycles--a width of 1,050,000 cycles.

Q. How many transmission channels are afforded in each range?

A. The present number of channels in the AM band is 106. A few of these channels are allocated for clear channel operation (one station to the channel) while the rest of the channels are operated on a shared channel basis. Present channels are more than saturated.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

with over 911 broadcast stations. Due to night time skip on these frequencies, severe congestion producing heterodyne "squeal" interference is prevalent. On the other hand the FM allocation offers room for several thousand stations without such interference existing between any stations. This is due to the fact that although there are approximately the same number of channels available (100 channels), these channels may be reassigned over and over again on a shared basis without the danger of interference due to the absence of "skip" on the very high frequencies used.

Q. What is being done to increase the number of FM stations?

A. Plans are reported well under way for the establishment of more FM stations in the larger cities and many new stations in smaller towns. As has already been pointed out, the saturated condition of the AM bands prevented the establishment of new stations for special types of programs and entertainment. Many schools now have plans to establish stations of their own so that they may bring to the public especially prepared educational and training programs. The cost factor is also in favor of the establishment of stations to render specialized public services as the cost of equivalent transmitters are appreciably lower for FM than for AM.

MUSEUM REQUESTS TANKS

NEW ORLEANS--The Louisiana state museum has asked for its share of surplus Army tanks and guns. They will be placed alongside relics of other wars. The museum already has a full-sized facsimile of the Japanese surrender document.

Service Personnel Cut

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)--Service personnel in New Orleans has been cut considerably in the past year. There were 150,000 in the area in August, 1944; there are now 71,140.

Palestine escapes the excessive drought of the interior of Arabia and Syria, because it is open to the weather influences of the Mediterranean.

Now?" Four experts will debate that question, on "America's Town Meeting," in its broadcast Thursday. Speaking for the affirmative will be Raymond Swing, network news analyst and commentator, and Lt. Cord Meyer, former aide to Capt. Harold E. Stassen. Expressing opposing viewpoints will be Lt. Col. Regan "Tex" McCrary, former editor of the New York Daily Mirror and former public relations officer of the Eighth Air Force, and Major George Fielding Elliot.
ARMY-NAVY GAME
Ted Malone salutes the annual Army-Navy football classic with a program dedicated to sports on his Friday broadcast. Of all the American sports, such as baseball, football, basketball, tennis, fishing and hunting, Malone will reveal which one proves to be the costliest. The answer will surprise you.

CLASSICAL APPROVAL
All exponents of the classics do not frown upon popular music. Dr. Walter Damrosch is one example. For six years Damrosch trained Henry King for the career of a concert pianist. But King, who will be heard on "Spotlight Bands" Friday, changed his mind and organized a dance band. Today Dr. Damrosch is one of King's greatest admirers.
FM MAKING STRIDES
The Radio Manufacturers Association has issued, in "question and answer" form, the principal facts

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

about FM, an important static-eliminating improvement in radio, brought up to date in line with postwar developments recently made public. Some of these are as follows:
Q. What is FM?
A. A new method of broadcasting that is normally operated in the higher portion of the radio spectrum and which makes possible faithful and natural reproduction of all musical tones from the deepest bass to the highest overtone.
Q. What is the chief difference between AM and FM?
A. An AM (standard) receiver responds to variations in amplitude, whereas an FM receiver responds to variations in frequency. Much electrical noise is not present in the higher frequencies used in FM.
Q. Are two different types of broadcasting methods necessary?
A. Yes. Most AM stations, including all those now on the major networks, make use of ground waves which follow the curvature of the earth and which have a range of around 100 miles in the daytime and up to several hundred miles (for clear channel stations) at night. Most FM stations use a direct wave traveling in a straight line from station to horizon. The maximum range, both day and night, is around 100 miles.
Q. Are different types of radio receivers necessary to receive both FM and AM programs?
A. Yes, although many of the new model radios will be, in reality, FM and AM sets in one. These receivers will contain the essential components of both FM and AM and by means of a switch will be capable of changing to receive either kind of program.
Q. What is the position of FM in the radio spectrum?
A. The new FM frequencies, just authorized by the Federal Communications Commission, are from 88 to 108 megacycles. The width of the entire band is 20,000,000 cycles.
Q. What is the position of AM in the radio spectrum?
A. From 550 to 1600 kilocycles—a width of 1,050,000 cycles.
Q. How many transmission channels are afforded in each range?
A. The present number of channels in the AM band is 106. A few of these channels are allocated for clear channel operation (one station to the channel) while the rest of the channels are operated on a shared channel basis. Present channels are more than saturated with over 911 broadcast stations. Due to night time skip on these frequencies, severe congestion producing heterodyne "squeal" interference is prevalent. On the other hand the FM allocation offers room for several thousand stations without such interference existing between any stations. This is due to the fact that although there are approximately the same number of channels available (100 channels), these channels may be reassigned over and over again on a shared basis without the danger of interference due to the absence of "skip" on the very high frequencies used.

Q. What is being done to increase the number of FM stations?
A. Plans are reported well under way for the establishment of more FM stations in the larger cities and many new stations in smaller towns. As has already been pointed out, the saturated condition of the AM bands prevented the establishment of new stations for special types of programs and entertainment. Many schools now have plans to establish stations of their own so that they may bring to the public especially prepared educational and training programs. The cost factor is also in favor of the establishment of stations to render specialized public services as the cost of equivalent transmitters are appreciably lower for FM than for AM.
MUSEUM REQUESTS TANKS
NEW ORLEANS—The Louisiana state museum has asked for its share of surplus Army tanks and guns. They will be placed alongside relics of other wars. The museum already has a full-sized facsimile of the Japanese surrender document.
Service Personnel Cut
NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)—Service personnel in New Orleans has been cut considerably in the past year. There were 150,000 in the area in August, 1944; there are now 71,140.
Palestine escapes the excessive drought of the interior of Arabia and Syria, because it is open to the weather influences of the Mediterranean.

AAA To Spend $109,000 In Pickaway County During 1946

COMMITTEEMEN TO BE NAMED AT MEETINGS

County Farmers To Select Delegates To AAA County Committee

A sum of $109,000 has been allocated for 1946 conservation work in Pickaway county by the AAA. The money will be used to purchase fertilizer and lime, to build farm ponds and to promote other conservation practices.

John Boggs, chairman of the county AAA committee, has announced that a series of meetings will be held in the various townships to discuss conservation and other AAA work designed to help the farmer meet post-war problems. Election of AAA committeemen will be conducted at the meetings.

The meetings will start Wednesday with evening meetings in Circleville and Darby townships and continue through December 5, on which date, the final meetings, those for Jackson and Monroe townships will be held.

Anyone who is an owner, operator, tenant or sharecropper on a farm on which AAA payments, either in the form of cash, services or conservation materials have been or may be made under the 1945 AAA program, sugar program, flaxseed program, or anyone who has made a contract with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, is eligible to attend and vote at the meetings.

One of the county committeemen will be at each of the meetings to discuss postwar problems and highlights of the 1946 program. The work done during 1945 will be reviewed.

To be elected at these meetings are members of the Community AAA committee, and delegates to elect members to the County AAA committee.

"It is important to you and the future of farm programs that you attend the election meeting in your community and vote for the men whom you think will do the best job," Mr. Boggs advises farmers.

Election meetings are scheduled as follows:

Circleville township, Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m. in the AAA office.

Darby township, Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m., Darby township school building.

WHEELER HITS RED PRACTICES

Senator Says U. S. Should Quit Appeasing Russia, Take Firm Stand

BY JAMES E. ROPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Sen.

Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., demanded that the United States "quit appeasing Russia and let her know once and for all we did not fight this war to let her enslave Europe."

"By our liberation of the tragic peoples of Europe and Asia, we have delivered them from the hands of one cruel and inhuman dictator into the bloody and tyrannical hands of another," the pre-Pearl Harbor non-interventionist told the senate in a 10,000-word speech directed mostly at the Soviet.

Wheeler spoke against a pending bill which would permit the United Nations organization to use American troops as part of an international force to put down aggressor nations. He said the bill "leads us inevitably down the road to the annihilation of an atomic war."

As debate spread to a general discussion of American foreign policy, Wheeler urged the United Nations to call "a real peace conference—and let us do it with or without Russia's participation."

The conference, he said, should attempt "some measure of international control of the atomic bomb patterned after the Truman-Attlee-King formula," try to abolish conscription throughout the world, and obtain "progressive multilateral disarmament."

He also asked that United States relief abroad be administered by Americans.

Wheeler bluntly criticized both Great Britain and Russia, but saved his bitterest remarks for the Russians.

"I want to ask my colleagues if they know of any major treaty she has not broken since she joined the League of Nations," Wheeler said.

He charged that the Poles had been "sold down the river into the hands of as despicable a tyranny as the world has ever seen." He quoted the Manchester Guardian to support his picture of what the Poles have been through "since they have been delivered from the tender ministrations of the Nazis to those of the Soviet."
